HONGKONG, WEDNESDAY, DEC. 3, 1902.

CHINA COMMERCIAL STEAMSHIP COMPANY, LTD.

So great has been the prosperity of the numerous shipping firms trading between the Orient and the United States of America during the past few years that enterprise is now being directed to the Mexican coast in the hope, not only of developing trade between China and the Republic, but of engaging upon an extensive passenger traffic for which an excellent opening is apparent. On the 1st of November last the China Commercial Steamship Co., Ltd., was incorporated at Hongkong with a capital of a million dollars, subscribed by Chinese, and allotted in 9980 ordinary shares of $100 each with 20 founders' shares. At the same time the Treasury officials at Washington received information of the forthcoming project and proceeded to deal with the question especially regarding the vexed subject of immigration. The most northern port to be touched in Mexico will be Ensenada, the reason assigned for calling there being, according to the department's information, that many Chinese labourers are needed for mining in Lower California. The head office of the Company will be in Hongkong, and branches and agencies are to be established at Yokohama, Honolulu, San Francisco, Manzanillo and Mazatlan. There will be monthly sailings and freight and passengers will be carried. The final arrangements are now being completed, Mr. Eng Hok Fong, who has had considerable experience regarding the commerce of Mexico, and who has been appointed president of the new company, having gone to the States where Mr. J. S. Van Buren, the agent, has already been actively engaged in the interests of the undertaking. It is proposed to commence operations in March next, and one feels confident that they will be calculated to stimulate commerce and develop industries.

LAPPA TRADE REPORT.

One of the most interesting features of the Lappa trade report for 1901 is embodied in the concluding remarks of the Commissioner of Customs, Mr. Francis A. Carl, who alludes to the improvements in the Colony of Macao. He states that old, insanitary houses are being pulled down and replaced by up-to-date buildings, while new roads are continually being opened, and the bund of the inner harbour considerably widened. Since that report was written we believe that a harbour improvement scheme, which had been formulated some years ago, will be shortly carried into effect. To this end authority had been previously received from the Lisbon Government to proceed with the work as soon as the preliminary arrangements could be completed. In the memorial, which the Macao Senate submitted to H. M. Majesty the King of Portugal on the 13th November last, it is stated that it would be expedient for Macao to enter into an agreement in regard to Chinese Customs, and to establish a modus vivendi that would tend to facilitate and develop the commercial movement of the Portuguese Colony with the Chinese ports. This is a desideratum which the Luso-Chinese treaty, just concluded by H. E. J. d'Azevedo Castella Branco is intended to supply. One of the first necessities is to obtain from the Chinese Customs the same privilege for vessels propelled by steam as that at present enjoyed by Chinese junks. Up till now the trade between Macao and the Chinese ports has been carried on in junks, and the Convention, signed at Peking on the 1st December, 1887, between the Inspector General of the Chinese Customs, Sir Robert Hart, and the Secretary of the Portuguese Legation, Mr. B. P. Correia de Mello, grants the liberty of free navigation to junks to any Chinese ports, and accords to Macao the same rights enjoyed by the ports of China as regards cargo carried in native bottoms. But in 1897 the West River was opened to European commerce, and since then there has been in these regions a perfect transformation in the transport of articles of commerce to the neighbouring ports, with resulting losses to Macao. At the same time there are dozens of steam launches leaving Canton daily, taking in tow junks well-laden with merchandise and carrying thousands of passengers to the ports in the interior, whether open to foreign commerce or not. Macao is only granted navigation to the Treaty ports under the Anglo-Chinese Treaty of 1897. The new Portuguese Treaty appears to confer upon owners of steam launches the rights and privileges of calling at the Treaty ports now enjoyed as the sole concession to native junks. Mr. Carl has alluded to the trade of the Lappa stations during 1901 as being the highest yet recorded. It amounted to a little over fourteen and a half million taels, or an increase slightly in excess of a million taels as compared with the figures of 1900. The increase is entirely due to the export and import trade; whereas, in foreign goods there was an increase, principally attributable to the falling off in the importation of opium, piece goods and rice. With the opening of Kwangchowwan, as we have before noted in these columns, Macao has had established within close proximity to her another rival, as the districts, in the neighbourhood of that newly opened French port, which formerly drew their supplies from the Portuguese settlement have now almost ceased doing so. There are direct steamers leaving our port for Kwangchowwan; but an effort has been made on the part of an enterprising firm of Chinese traders to run the steamer Macao, under the Portuguese flag, carrying cargo and passengers to and from Macao, Hongkong and Kwangchowwan. This service was, however, inaugurated in the course of the present year, and the statistics, in connection with the trade that may be influenced under Chinese auspices, will not appear until the report is forthcoming next year. The baneful influences of piracy on the waters of the Canton Delta have made their effects felt upon the junk traffic of the Lappa Stations, while armed smuggling, not inappreciable, has been collected for the Lappa district was Tls. 378,606, as against Tls. 367,069 in 1900. The amount collected on opium, viz. Hk. Tls. 177,433 is the smallest since 1895, and this is put down by the Commissioner of Customs to smuggling from Kwangchowwan. In general cargo duties there was a substantial increase of Hk. Tls. 18,306, and in like of Hk. Tls. 10,562. The total value of foreign imported trade amounted to Hk. Tls. 3,625,890, representing a small decrease of Hk. Tls. 317,312, as compared with 1900. While in cotton piece goods there was a decline, the importation of flour shows a steady advance: the quantity imported being 27,400 piculs against 22,800 piculs for 1900. The value of the export trade amounted to Hk. Tls. 6,246,617, compared with Hk. Tls. 5,640,729 the previous year. This is a record, and is accounted for by the large export of sugar, palm-leaf fans, mats, ground-nut oil, paper and leaf tobacco. Travellers by the river steamboat companies from Macao cannot help but noticing on the upper deck of the Huangshan the enormous quantities of fresh and salted eggs brought down each trip. This furnishes quite an important item of export, and in 1901 represented 10,075,000 pieces as compared with 9,209,000 two years ago. Our building requirements have also largely drawn from this district for bricks and tiles, and also lime. In silk, there was a decrease as well as in tea. Turning to the junk traffic entered and cleared, we find the substantial increase of 1,073 vessels and 49,602 tons over the shipping of 1900. This is the highest tonnage recorded since 1894, the year of the first outbreak of plague in Hongkong. Two Portuguese steamers, the Waoon and Taipei, were kept on the West River run, and made 595 trips during the year, carrying cargo to the value of about a quarter of a million taels. They took 16,868 passengers inwards and 16,179 outwards. The number of passengers in junks was 116,798 inwards and 111,976 outwards, in both cases showing large increases over the figures for 1900. The value of the Macao opium trade to the local farmer was fully commented upon when the new farm was put up for auction in the course of this year. An estimate can be arrived at by the figures supplied by Mr. Carl. They are—importation for the Macao farmer, 2,936 chests, his reputed holdings down for local consumption, 1,042 piculs, and amount exported to American and Australian ports, 2,478 piculs. Summarising his report on the Lappa trade for 1901, Mr. Carl remarks that, "the usual visitation to Macao of the plague began in April and continued till the end of July. The disease was very virulent for a while, and attacked many Chinese; but Europeans escaped entirely. The neighbouring villages take no precautions whatever against the introduction of the disease." The improvements that we have noted at the beginning of this article, are such as to point to the finances of Macao being in a flourishing condition to allow of all this extra expenditure. It is certain that, if the advance in the values of the various farms is to be accepted as an indication of the satisfactory state of the Colony's finances there is every hope that its exchequer should be able to spend much more than it does at present upon public improvements, which may be termed of a reproductive character. The long deferred reconstruction of the market, for instance, points to that happy-go-lucky indifference in the methods, which account for the slow growth and hampered progress of the Colony, which, though small in extent, is capable of great and permanent development.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

THE ROBERT COOKE, the new Dock Company's tug, is nearly completed.

THE FRENCH MAIL of the 3rd November was delivered in London on the 2nd inst.

THE GERMAN MAIL of the 29th October was delivered in London on the 1st instant.

THE CHINA MANILA S. S. PERLA finished her annual survey at the Kowloon Docks yesterday.

THE TRAMP STEAMER VICTORIA, recently ashore, has finished her extensive bottom repairs at the Aberdeen Dock.

THE AMHERST which was successfully salvaged by Mr. G. H. Russell is now undergoing repairs at the slipway at Tanjong Rhu.

WELL EARNED HOLIDAYS.—After twelve years' service, Mr. N. G. Nolan, interpreter at the Magistracy, has been granted twelve months' leave of absence, beginning from 29th April, 1903.

FIRE AT SHAUKIWAN ROAD.—Last night the Fire Brigade, under Mr. A. Mackie, chief Inspector of Police, put out a fire at No. 6, Shaukiwai Road. The outbreak is said to have been caused by the filling of a kerosene lamp.

ACCIDENT ON THE INDRAPURA.—Yesterday while a native young man, working at the steering gear of the s.s. Indrapura, fell on to the deck and sustained injuries which necessitated his removal to the Government Civil Hospital, where he now lies in a critical condition.

FIRE AT THE DOCKS.—A fire broke out last night at a store-house in the Kowloon Docks, but a serious loss was averted by the promptness and energy of the Dock employees, assisted by a party of men from the German gunboat Tiger.

THE S.S. TACOMA, which it will be remembered, sustained considerable damage to deck fittings by the heavy seas encountered in her last trans-Pacific voyage, has been undergoing repairs at the hands of the Dock Company since her arrival. She went into dry dock at Kowloon yesterday to have her bottom painted.

TWELFTH NIGHT.—The Waldorf Company play the Shakespearean comedy Twelfth Night for the first time this evening, and there can be no denying the fact that a good rickling laugh is assured to all who have secured tickets. It is a piece which always delights, and receives the warmest applause from the galleries and boxes. The Company has spared no pains to ensure a successful reproduction, and we rely on seeing an excellent interpretation of this merry play.

THE OUPWARD MOVEMENT in exchange continues at a rapid rate, says the Singapore Free Press of the 25th ult. This morning 1/7 was quoted for four months, a fall of 1/4 since yesterday. On India exchange has also fallen to 116 1/2, both of them records. Good authorities speak of this as unnecessarily low, under that of silver, but it is sufficiently alarming from a business point of view. The rumour that Germany is selling silver is current, and is held accountable for knocking all the bottom out of the market. Now is the time to lament lost opportunities.

WEDDING BELLS.—This morning a very pretty but quiet wedding took place at St. John's Cathedral when Miss E. M. F. King, the eldest daughter of Mr. G. J. W. King, of the Land Department, was married to Mr. C. E. P. Mattheissen, of the Chinese Engineering and Mining Company, Tongku. The bride was charmingly dressed, and was given away by her father. The two bridesmaids, were two of her sisters. Volleys of rice greeted the happy couple as they left the church porch. They subsequently boarded the Huangshan and left for Macao where the honeymoon is to be spent.

KOWLOON COLLAPSE INQUIRY.

NO CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE.

JURY'S VERDICT.

The inquiry into the collapse of Nos. 30 and 32 Kowloon City Road was resumed this afternoon.

Mr. Lobker, of Messrs Deacon and Hastings, on behalf of the contractor Lung Cheong, gave a very able and lengthy address in the course of which he quoted from several authorities dealing on culpable negligence. He contended that "the contractor had done everything in his power, and although lives had been lost in the collapse, yet that could not be placed at the doors of the contractor, and the architects who were in no wise held responsible." He read over and commented upon the evidence and in speaking of the quality of the materials used in the construction of the houses submitted that the premises in question were built in a way far superior to the ordinary run of Chinese houses in this Colony. Regarding the subsidence of the foundations he thought that there was none at all, and in his opinion the collapse was due to wind and rain combined.

Mr. Wilkinson pointed out that the jury was present to find out and inquire into the cause of the death of the coolie, and incidentally to inquire into the collapse. Remarking on the materials used, he said that the evidence showed that the bricks, mortar, and lime were excellent. Mr. Brown, the Government analyst, in his evidence, however, said that the lime and mortar used were not good.

Mr. Bowley, solicitor for the Crown, observed that the jury was not present to try any one, for culpable negligence, but to inquire into the cause of the loss of life. If they returned a verdict of culpable negligence, it was for the magistrate to commit the contractor for trial at the sessions. He thought that the architect should have taken more precautions than he did. Many theories, he said, had been brought forward regarding the cause of the collapse. There was nothing very extraordinary about the typhoon, and as the houses were new they should have stood the wind and rain.

Mr. E. A. Hazeland, Chief Magistrate, addressed the jury and defined the question of criminal negligence, and also quoted several passages from works dealing with criminal negligence, and put the following questions to the jury:—

Was the death of the deceased herein the result of criminal negligence?

To this question they should say "yes" or "no." If they answered in the affirmative he proposed to put this question: If "yes," what person or persons were guilty of such criminal negligence; and, person or persons guilty of such criminal negligence would be guilty of manslaughter. The jury were quite at liberty to add a rider if they desired to do so.

After retiring for about 45 minutes the jury consisting of Messrs. Kew, Chunnutt, and Joseph, resumed their seats and stated they did not consider the death of deceased was due to criminal negligence. The jury added the following rider:—"We find that the death of the deceased herein was due to the collapse of No. 30."

We are also of opinion that having regard to the area of the wall, its thickness was insufficient.

Mr. Shelton Hooper watched the case throughout on behalf of the Land Investment Company.

STOWAWAY ON THE S. S. "CHINGTU."

BOY CHARGED WITH AIDING AND ABETTING.

Before Mr. J. H. Kemp this afternoon Chung San, a boy employed on the s.s. Chingtu, which arrived from Australian ports yesterday, was charged with aiding and abetting Lau Kwan to obtain a passage to Port Darwin (10 Hongkong), and also with defrauding the Company (Messrs. Butterfield and Swire).

The comrade of the Chingtu said that a few days after the boat left Port Darwin, he went round to count the native passengers, and found one over the number. Inquiries were instituted and the stowaway was questioned by the captain, who told him he would have to pay £10 for his passage. The boy replied that he had no more money, as he had already paid £3 to the defendant. All the boys were then brought before the captain, and the defendant picked out, as the man who received the money from him.

After taking the evidence of the captain and steward, His Worship fined the boy $250 or six months, and the stowaway, who was also charged, $100 or three months.

NAVAL NOTES.

AN UNLUCKY SHIP.

It is only a few weeks since the United States ship Ingalls was docked at Hongkong and now she returns, after being in contact with a coral reef, for a hull inspection and, if necessary, repairs. She proceeded to the Cosmopolite Dock this morning, and, as the water was not out of the dock at the time of our latest report, we are unable to state what is the condition of her hull.

H.M.S. first class armoured battleship Glory with Admiral Sir Cyprion Bridge arrived from Yokohama last night.

The United States flag ship Kentucky is booked for docking by the Hongkong and Whampoa Dock Company. She is a super-posest (turret war-ship) of 13,500 tons displacement and was built at Newport News in 1898. The United States cruiser New Orleans, Light Commander Sperry, arrived from Amoy this afternoon. She is a vessel of 8,760 tons displacement and was built at Elswick in 1896.

THE HANOI EXPOSITION.

The Hanoi Exposition is a highly interesting display, to the practical man, who looks to the exploitation of the vast area, and to the ethnological investigator alike.

The wonderful collections of indigenous exhibits take the inquirer over the whole of South Eastern Asia.

The plan of the buildings, which are imposing and solid, is a semicircle with buildings round a quadrangle in rear, and annexes radiating from the several sections and various nationalities.

The City of Hanoi, of which the river port of Haiphong is a smaller replica, is impressively laid out in magnificent boulevards planted with shady trees, broad roads and foot ways, well maintained, kerbed, channeled and drained. The public buildings and some of the Hotels are palatial, the stores (or shops) metropolitan and up to date. The private residences, surrounded with lawns and flower beds, are quite grand, and ever, thing orderly, tidy and clean. The telegraph, telephone and electric light wires are carried on iron standards, and are not at all unsightly. The electric trolley omnibus traveres the main avenues to the Gare (Railway Depot) Exhibition and other principal points of the City. Jirikshas are abundant and cheap, a little extra being charged for those with rubber tires, which are plentiful.

Altogether the French, especially the residents of Hanoi, may well be proud of their new city at the Exhibition.

The French Military element is naturally, and of necessity, ever in evidence, but it is a pleasing feature that might teach a needed lesson elsewhere, to be noticed, that the attitude of the governing of an alien race, is very courteous, conciliatory and friendly. The natives are employed in large numbers, wherever possible, even as station masters on the railways, and other responsible positions. Amiable, quiet, evidently happy and contented, unambitious apparently, the Annamese form a strong contrast to the Chinese, (who are active in trade,) and especially they are altogether different from "Young Japan up to date." This being harvest time, the peasantry are busy in the fields, so that the country appears thickly populated on the level land, which is well cultivated. The hills bear trees, but reforestation claims official attention. With short lines of railway from the coast, tapping the interior, the possibilities of the vast area of fertile country are immense. Cheap transit, capital, enterprise and well directed energy only are needed to exploit it all. The Congress of Orientalists will be held during the first and second weeks of December.

I had an interview with the president of the Congress, and submitted a tentative syllabus of the material I proposed to offer. The iconography, &c. especially interested him. There will only be two or three Japanese who will deal with Sanskrit texts, and Hindu cults, and two or three French gentlemen will treat of Japanese matters, one being about newspapers. So it appears that I am to have the field to myself. I will take up the Cults, Art and Folklore of Olden Time Japan, especially the iconography. The motives, meanings and stories illustrated in decorative art, &c. and the Folklore of the common people &c. The audience present may be but a few, but the "proceedings" being printed, will reach a wide circle of readers, and form a permanent record for reference.—Contributed.

THE "PHRA NANG."

SO LATES TO BE REPLACED.

Work is proceeding apace on the Norddeutscher Lloyd steamer Phra Nang, and in a few weeks the vessel will be as sound as a new ship. Some 50 plates have been removed from her hull, the damage extending well above the line of the forward break of the hurricane deck. At one place, in the forefoot, the keel is severed and further aft it has been necessary to unrig a portion of the Bilge keel. Besides these repairs, the vessel is having a thorough overhauling, her propeller is unshipped and a number of chipping hammer cutters are making a fine noise knocking the rust from her hull sides, while the painters follow up with the bright red priming. Her little collision with the Paracels will soon be forgotten.

THE CANTON-FAHSHAN RAILWAY.

UNCOMFORTABLE PREDICAMENT.

From Chinese sources we are informed that recently some trouble arose over the Canton-Fahshan railway. Two foreigners, according to our informant, whilst out on a surveying expedition, seemed to have incurred the displeasure of the villagers of a small village. As is the case with surveying parties, these gentlemen thoroughly equipped with surveying materials, were taking down topographical notes, with this surveying instrument, and whilst doing so the villagers, numbering about twenty surrounded the party, after taking careful observations politely asked the surveyors to leave the ground, and assured them that at present they were quite aware that they were Government spies, and taking down notes for their Governments. In vain the surveyors pleaded their mission, and it was only at the last minute that the situation was saved, and the villagers appeared when a more enlightened Chinaman, who spoke a little of English, informed the villagers that the surveyors were only the servants of the Railway Company, and not foreign spies. After that the surveying party were allowed to pursue their mission without interruption.

THE DOCK CO. MEETING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "HONGKONG TELEGRAPH." Sir,—In your report of the meeting of the Hongkong and Whampoa Dock Company Limited held on the 18th ultimo it is said that the three months' adjournment from the 18th August last was settled with our advice and was not an idea originated solely by the Directors themselves. As we only advised upon the legality of the adjournment, and neither originated the idea thereof nor suggested its adoption, we shall be obliged by your inserting this letter, which circumstances have prevented our sending earlier, in your next issue. We may add that we are informed that the statement referred to in the report was due to a misunderstanding.

Yours truly,

HORRIBLE TRAGEDY IN NAM HOI DISTRICT.

News has come to hand of a horrible tragedy which recently occurred at the small village of Cheong On in the prefecture of Nanchow, Kwangtung. It appears that as late back as June, a certain villager returned to his native home after eleven years' stay in the State, and had accumulated a respectable sum of money. As is the case, he married. Last month, he had occasion to go to Canton on some business, and took his wife with him. Whilst in that city he rented a small flat, and after a week's stay returned home with his wife. At Canton, however, his wife, appears to have cultivated an attachment with one of the inmates of the house, with the result that when the couple returned, this particular friend also went. Matters seemed to have reached a climax when the husband found out that his wife used to have clandestine meetings with this stranger. He instantly demanded an explanation from his wife, who instead of replying in a gently approach manner, and amidst her smiles treacherously buried a dagger into his heart. Death was instantaneous. A servant, who witnessed the tragedy, speedily informed the mother of the husband. A hue and cry was raised, and with commendable energy, the murderer and her lover were arrested. After a semblance of trial, the elders of the village took the laws into their own hands, and had the culprits executed by means of the process known as the ling chee. After their death, their bodies were thrown into the river, and the effects of the deceased burned.

WHY HUMAN REMAINS ARE BROUGHT TO HONGKONG.

"Chinese are as proud of their old families, and of being able to trace their forefathers back for many generations, as are the nobility in England of the fact that they have had dukes and barons in their families for centuries. Some Chinese can point to the graves of their ancestors dating back hundreds of years."

This is part of the explanation given by Mr. Sun Johnson for the extraordinary practice of so many of the Chinese in Australia in sending home the remains of their fellow-countrymen after death. Mr. Johnson, the editor of the Chins Herald, is one of the most intelligent Chinamen in Sydney, and one of the best informed. Fluent in conversation, he has an extensive English vocabulary at his command, which enables him to make himself understood above most of his countrymen.

"It has become a custom, and everybody wants to live up to it," he continued. "It is really the ancient idea of embalming or preserving bodies. The Chinese like to show their love for old people. The utility of the idea is scarcely capable of explanation. It is largely a matter of custom or practice, like the ceremonies in a Masonic lodge."

"The remains are first sent to Hongkong. From there they are re-directed to the nearest relatives in different places, who receive and bury them."

"There will be great lamentation over the loss of the remains by the Venture wreck, just as Europeans would lament the loss of a coffin containing the body or remains of their relatives during transit by water, but nothing more."

"They take up the bodies to see that they are not rotting from contact with damp. After the remains have been put in a jar they are re-buried in what is considered to be a lucky and suitable place. Surrounding the tombstone a cement ornamental compartment about 10ft. by 15ft. is always built on top of the remains, and that stands for good. After interment the relatives go to the cemetery twice a year for ceremonial worship, according to custom."

"The principal thing is not to let the bones remain where they are buried in this country to be destroyed, or even, partly so, by white ants, which may have eaten the coffin and the flesh. They think that the spirit of the dead is better satisfied in that way. They have often gone to Rookwood and found, to their great dissatisfaction, the remains soaking in sewer water, with the grave has been opened. Hence they are glad to be able to take the remains from where they have been compelled to inter them, and re-bury them in a dry and clean place, according to their own relatives' choice. The cemetery authorities always give the Chinese the cheapest bit of ground they can put out. Here, John, you can have that, and John, not able to speak English intelligibly, takes what he can get."

"I was born in Hongkong, and educated from the age of 6 to 15," continued Mr. Johnson, dropping into a biographical strain, "in a Chinese school. Then I went to London, until I was 22, for education, and after that to compare the translations of one and the other for three years. Now, as you know, I am a translator, and the editor of the Chins Herald, and a Christian of the Church of England, since childhood. Were my own father's remains soaking in that pool of black water at Rookwood I should be very glad, I assure you, to follow the example of the others, and to have them raised, cleaned, and re-buried, without requiring any particular spot, except one that was clean and dry."

"There were not 500 corpses. That is a mistake," Mr. Johnson commented, while reading a published account of the wreck. "Our people simply clean the bones and put them in bags or jars for shipment. Why should they use coffins? They are not necessary for carrying bones, which would only rot about in them. If a grave is opened and it is found that the flesh has not all disappeared from the bones, the remains are buried again. They wouldn't be bothered scraping the bones."

"Big preparations had been made for months past for this shipment. A Chinese society in New Zealand, organised to do good, had the matter in hand of despatching the remains. Something like £6000 was subscribed in instalments to pay the cost. Some fuss was made about it because all the bags and jars containing the remains were piled up in a shed awaiting shipment, and it was complained that a nuisance might be caused, but as they were only dry bones they could not prove any more offensive than so much crockery."

"If, as you say, the remains have been insured for between £400 and £5000, that money will be sent to the widows and children or nearest relatives as an expression of sympathy with them in their loss."

"The Chinese understand that after the spirit has departed from the body it carries about the graveyard. They have never been told so by tongue or read of it in a book, but the idea seems to have come as by instinct."

"The Chinese belief as to the future state is that those who have been good and done good in the world will always remain good; while those who have been bad will receive punishment after death. Punishment consists of the spirit being whipped or tortured with hot irons and sharp instruments, and other ways. They believe there are judges above, as well as below, exactly as the Bible teaches, the exception being that there is no mention of fire. Those who have done good in the world will rejoice with angels or fairies. The leading idea is very similar to that of the European. The greatest divergence in Chinese doctrine is the absence of any reference to baptism, or going to Heaven, but they are sure of a hell of torture with sharp or heavy instruments, which the good can always escape after receiving their judgment."

"Confucius never mentioned anything about the dead," said Mr. Johnson. "I know him well," he interpolated, with a broad smile on his face, "although I never saw the man." He certainly gave the impression of being a human lexicon on the subject of Confucian doctrine and deuter, for walking to a book and taking down a copy of Confucius Analek, he turned over the pages rapidly, and put his finger promptly on chapter xix, wherein the following dialogue occurs between Confucius and his disciple Kuei I:—"Kuei Loo asked about serving the spirits of the dead. The Master said: 'While you are not able to serve men, how can you serve their spirits?' Kuei Loo added: 'I venture to ask about death.' He was answered: 'While you do not know life, how can you know about death?'"

"That is the only reference to the subject by Confucius and that doctrine is supreme in China. Confucius is now worshipped by 400 millions of people, so that whatever branch of superstition or teaching is away from the main line of doctrine is much like any of your people believing in some superstition against the Bible. Confucius didn't understand about spirits and ghosts, and so he wouldn't talk about them. The Chinese are not as superstitious, however, as many people think. They are shy, but they are not superstitious or stupid."—E.

STRAITS TRADING CO., LIMITED.

The report of the Directors presented at the meeting held on Monday, was as follows:—

Your Directors beg to submit the Accounts for the half-year ending September 30, 1902, being the first half of the business year 1902-03.

The net profits for the half-year, after making allowance for bad and doubtful debts and writing off liberally for depreciation, amount to $365,668.34, which, including $76,175.74 brought forward from the previous account, leaves $441,844.08 for appropriation on September 30, 1902.

Your Directors recommended:—

1. That a dividend of $1 and a bonus of 25 cents per share be paid to shareholders absorbing $314,500.

2. That $50,000 be added to the Reserve Fund which will then stand at $550,000.

3. That the balance of $80,344.68 be carried forward to new account.

The tin market opened on April 1 at $75 and with occasional backsets advanced rapidly to $93 on May 13, this being the highest on record. From that point with slight fluctuations there was a rapid drop to $81 on June 19. From this date to September 30 fluctuations were more violent, the price touching $85 in July and $79 in September (losing finally on September 30 at $9).

The Works at Penang have yielded a moderate quantity of Ore with gradually improving results, and may now be considered as having reached the stage when efficient and economical work may be confidently looked for.

The total output from both works shows an increase of 23,028 tons over the previous half-year.

MR. QUONG TART.

HONOURED BY SYDNEY CITIZENS.

Mr. Quong Tart, the popular Chinese merchant, who was recently the victim of a serious attack at the hands of a robber, has every reason to be proud of the honour done him by the great gathering of citizens at the Town Hall last night, says the Evening News of the 28th October, when, as a token of congratulation upon his recovery, he was presented with a handsome piece of plate and a cheque for 300 guineas.

The Mayor of Sydney (Alderman Thomas Hughes) presided over a large and influential gathering.

The Mayor, in opening the proceedings, said that he experienced much pleasure in presiding over such a splendid gathering of citizens to do honour to one of the most public-spirited men in Sydney. It was not only by reason of the great loss Mr. Tart had sustained by the attack of which he had been the unfortunate victim, but because of the very great good that he had done among them. When necessity called Mr. Tart had always given freely, and he, the Mayor, had no doubt that he always would do so. He was justly regarded by all classes as one of the very best citizens in the land (Cheers.)

John W. Baines, M.L.A., who was present to represent the Government of New South Wales, said he had enjoyed the honour of Mr. Tart's acquaintance for four or five years, and had always found him to be one of the most loyal and patriotic Britishers he had ever met—(cheers and laughter)—and one of the most worthy and upright of Sydney's citizens.

As a native of the colonies, he was only too pleased to do honour to a man who, though not born beneath the flag of Britain, had complied with the laws of his adopted country, and made himself as good a citizen as any in it.—(Applause.)

Mr. J. H. Want said he had known Quong Tart since he was about the size of a piece of chalk—(laughter)—and, like a piece of chalk, he had always left a white mark behind him wherever he went. (Cheers.) Every man was proud of his friendship, and looked upon him as an honourable man. Both Mr. Tart and his brother held very high rank in China, and he (Mr. Want) thought that when the time came that the Chinese Government wanted a Consul to represent them here, they would find in Quong Tart a man who would not only do credit to China, but to New South Wales, for though he might not be a born statesman, when a little bit of what was called "savvy" was required he would be as good as any man among them. (Cheers.)

Mr. A. W. Meeks said that Mr. Tart was a man worthy of all honour as a citizen, and a man respected by all in the community, by reason of the services which he had rendered to his fellowmen. He was for ever foremost in charitable movements, and ready to put his hand in his pocket to help anybody in distress.

Professor Anderson Stuart observed that he had known Mr. Tart in many philanthropic movements, and had always found him to be one of the most generous and charitable of men. He was a worthy representative of a race which was civilised thousands of years ago, and which during those thousands of years had succeeded in preserving intact, under its forms of Government, some 400,000,000 of people. (Applause.)

Archdeacon Langley remarked that the kindness, generosity, straightforwardness, and liberality of Mr. Tart were worthy of all the praise that had been bestowed upon him. On behalf of the Church of England he offered him his warmest congratulations, and wished him the long life and happiness which so many others had already desired for him. (Applause.)

Mr. W. R. G. Lee said it was very pleasing for the Chinese to hear one of their countrymen spoken of in such high terms of respect and esteem. (Cheers.) Every word that had been uttered he could fully and heartily endorse. Mr. Tart had always been a true friend to his own countrymen.

The Mayor, on behalf of the citizens of Sydney, then presented Mr. Tart with a handsome silver salver, bearing the following inscription:— "Presented to Mr. Quong Tart, accompanied by a purse of 300g, to commemorate his restoration to health from the effects of a murderous attack, and in token of the esteem in which he is held by all classes of the community. Town Hall, Sydney, October 27, 1902." The Mayor also handed to Mr. Tart the plate and cheque referred to.

Mr. Tart, who was received with enthusiasm, said that he had never dreamed that he could have been the recipient of such a high tribute of respect, any more than he had ever dreamed that he could be the victim of such an attack. When he came to Australia—quite a youngster—he had had the extreme good fortune to get with a good family—relatives of Mr. Justice G. B. Simpson. His Honour, and Mr. Percy Simpson, and Mrs. Simpson—Mr. Tart's sister—had all been very good to him. He thought it paid to "go straight," because one never knew what might happen, and at a time like that it showed a man, at any rate, that he had made a lot of friends. He did not think that a man's colour should be taken into consideration, in estimating his worth. The world would be a very tiresome sort of place if everybody looked alike, or thought alike—suppose, for instance, that all the men in the world wanted the same woman! (Loud laughter.) He agreed with Bobby Burns that "a man's a man, for a' that," no matter what the colour of his skin, if he was made of the right stuff underneath. He was very much indebted to the committee for having organised the meeting, and to all others who had taken any part in it, and he thanked all kind inquirers throughout the country.

from His Excellency the Governor down to the Federal Minister." (Loud laughter.)

The following list of personages, societies, and official bodies from whom Mr. Tart had received messages of sympathy was then read: The Governor, the Archbishop, Federal Ministers, members of the Bar, Supreme Court and other judges, the Churches, Senators and representatives, State Ms. L.C., State Ms. L.A., Consul for U.S. of America, Consul for Russia, Consul for Argentine Republic, Consul for Japan, municipalities, Highland Society of N.S. Wales, Benevolent Society, Randwick Asylum, Juvenile Smokers' Suppression Society, Sydney City Mission, Masonic Lodge Translucency, Masonic Lodge Pythagoras, Masonic Lodge Tuscan, United Friendly Societies, United A. Order of Druids, Commercial Travellers, Undertakers' Union, Farmers and Settlers' Association, Shipwreck Relief Society, Agricultural Society, Water and Sewerage Board, Inquiry Branch Department of Mines, Lunacy Department, Railway (metropolitan division), Master Plumbers' and Sanitary Engineers' Association, staff of Ashfield Railway Station, and Tramway Department.
